Simpler Recycling – what you need to know as a specifier

The Government has confirmed changes to the way refuse and recycling are collected from all properties across the UK, aiming to encourage proper recycling practices. While these changes are intended to end the postcode lottery and reduce the need for multiple bins, the requirements will still vary between local authorities and be introduced at different times, depending on building types and locations – creating a potential headache for specifiers.

urbanspec is here to help you navigate the complexities, ensuring you allocate sufficient space for waste and recycling storage on your development, regardless of its location or occupancy timeline. As specific requirements are announced by each local authority, we'll guide you in determining the exact type and quantity of bins needed and, as always, help you design your storage solutions to maximise recycling rates, enhance resident satisfaction, and ensure operational efficiency.

CPD Overview:

- Government Waste Collection Changes:
Key updates and their impact on developments
- Navigating Local Authority Requirements:
Understanding variations and ensuring compliance
- Designing Efficient Waste Storage:
Maximising space, recycling, and operational effectiveness
